"The US and UK are about to export highly-sensitive nuclear powered submarine tech-nology to Australia. This once noiogy to Australia. This once again shows that they are us-ing nuclear exports for geopo-litical gaming tools and apply-ing double standards which is extremely irresponsible. "Australia is a non-nuclear weapons state, party to the NPT (Treaty on the Non-Pro-liferation of Nuclear Weapons) and a party to the nuclear weapon free zone in the southern pacific. Now it is importing nuclear pow-ered submarine technology which is of strategic mili-tary value," Zhao told a me-

The relevant countries should abandon the obsolete Cold War zero-sum mentali-ty and narrow-minded geopolitical concept, respect regional people's aspirations and do more things con-ducive to regional peace, sta-bility and development. Oth-erwise, they will end up hurting their own interests, the Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman added. Unveiling the ambitious se-curity initiative, US Presi-curity initiative, US Presi-dent Joe Biden, UK Prime Minister Boris Johnson and his Australian counterpart his Australian counterpart Scott Morrison in a joint statement said their move will promote stability in the Indo-Pacific and support of their shared values and in-terests. Interestingly, the anterests. Interestingly, the an-nouncement of AUKUS has come a week before a meet-ing of Quad leaders to be hosted by US President Biden in Washington on Sep-tember 24.

Australians squirm as Biden calls PM 'fellow Down Under'

Australians squirmed on Thursday as US President Joe Biden thanked their prime minister for joining a major new defence al-liance - but appeared to forget his name.

liance - but appeared to forget his name.
Instead of being feted by name for his role in the US-Britain-Australia agreement, Prime Minister Scott Morrison was initially relegated to being "that fellow Down Under".
At a televised White House announcement, Biden was flanked by large video displays of British Prime Minister Boris Johnson and Australia's Morrison, who each took part remotely.
As he revealed an agreement that will equip Australia with nuclear-powered submarines, Biden said:
Thank you, Boris and... and I want to thank that fellow Down Under. Thank you very much, pal. Appreciate it, Mr Prime Minister.
Biden seemed to recover as he then turned Biden seemed to recover as he then turned to his formal remarks and correctly identified the Australian leader, who had earlier re-sponded to the apparent gaffe with a smile and a thumbs up. But it was too late for some. "Thanks pal: Biden appears to forget Mor-rison's name," ran a headline in the Cairns Post. The defence deal "may not have got off to the shining start for which Morrison hoped, of course, when US President Joe Biden appeared to forget his name at the cru-cial moment", said an analysis by the Sydney Morning Herald.
